Fuchs Caught By Word In Notebook Found In Canada

Sweeping Shake-up For British Security Plan

LONDON (UP)-Dr. Klaus Fuchs was trapped through a single word in a Russian agent's notebook found in Canada last year, informed quarters said today.

The notebook contained Fuchs' name followed by the Russian word "nash"—meaning "ours."

This set off a full-scale investigation which disclosed that the German-born British scientist had been revealing atomic secrets to Russia since 1942.

Oklahoma City's tough leopard slept in a cage at Lincoln Park Zoo after being recaptured within a few yards of where it had escaped. Driven back to its zoo home by hunger, the black-spotted beast ate some doped meat and was roped by the zoo's director while guards armed with pistols and rifles stood by. 'AN ONION AND YOU'

WHILE WAITING for the early morning news over the radio, our ears are frequently assailed with some of the extraordinary effects that pass for popular songs—if one can call them that—and I have often wondered how such songs came

Some of them are so utterly devoid of melody and sense as to give rise to the thought that if the labor which accompanied their birth hurt the progenitor half as much as it hurt the radio listener, then the composer must have had an agonizing time. Now I know something of what one such minstrel ent through, and it explains a lot.

BORN IN A GROCERY

A DETROIT newspaper which was sent to me happened to A have an item about one man's difficulties in crashing Tin Pan Alley, where dwell the moguls who decide what we shall inflicted with in the way of so-called popular songs. He was a young American, working in his father's grocery store. And, probably under the influence of that environment, he was one day inspired—and I quote "inspired"—to write a song about a woman who phones her husband at his office to bring home an onion she had forgotten to buy for the soup. The song is admittedly silly, says the news item, "but no more so than many other ditties that make money on royalties and recordings."

SIDEWALK SCRIBBLES

HOWEVER, it was evidently too silly even for Tin Pan Alley, If for the young man got nowhere with his efforts to have it heard and published. So he brooded over it and finally took desperate measures to publicize it. A month or so ago, Nev Yorkers began to puzzle over the words, "An Onion and You, chalked at street crossings all over the place. Until a police-man caught the composer in the act of chalking.

He was hauled into court and given a 10-day suspended sentence for defacing New York streets. But, such is life, once he got on the police records, fame hit the originator of "An Onion and You."

BEING LIONIZED

MAKES YOU WEEP

RADIO AND TELEVISION programs have lionized him as a R guest. He has been featured in press interviews. Music publishers have written to make inquiries about his song. And he is already anticipating its success by writing another as a follow-up, also based on the glorification of the grocery

After all, why not? There have been popular song hits in the past about bananas, peanuts, a bowl of cherries, a cup of coffee, tea for two. So why not carry it further and croon about the love life of a cauliflower—which, incidentally, Mark Twain once described as a cabbage turned aristocratic—or warble about the tender breath of garlic, the pure heart of celery, or the caresses of a carrot?

AND IF-and when-"An Osion and You" comes over the A radio or out of the ubiquitous juke-box and makes you feel like weeping, as well as wishing that the grocer-composer's sentence hadn't been suspended but prolonged to penal servitude for life . . . well!

I have been reduced to the verge of tears by other less tear-jerking song themes than onlons. And, after all, that vegetable has inspired even great literary lights to m. As Shakespeare said, in his Midsummer Night's Dream, "Eat no onions or garlic, for we are to utter sweet breath," while, coming a little nearer to the grocer's home, the late Robert Benchley eulogized a little cafe, "where hearts vere high and fortunes low, and onions in the stew."

RIGHT THROUGH - YATES TO VIEW

A Gradual Removal Best

ALTHOUGH THE DECISION OF THE Supreme Court of Canada on the question of rent controls, in the words of a Canadian Press dispatch, "is in the nature of an opinion and in a legal sense is not binding on anyone," it has served to clear the air in regard to the validity of the legislation in peacetime. Basically, the court's decision establishes two facts: Parliament has the right to enact legislation to cope with emerg-encies resulting from the war; and it also has the power to decide how long such legislation should continue in force after the emergency has subsided.

The way is now open for the Domin ion Government to continue its policy of gradual relaxation of the rental restric-tions it was forced to impose during the conflict. An adverse decision by the seven justices would have meant that the controls would have disappeared abruptly, with consequent inconvenience to many tenants whose budgets would have been subject to sudden upset.

On the basis of the old dictum that "the best government is the least gov-ernment," the Liberal Administration has not sought—as some governments have—to retain permanently the restrictive powers that it had to assume in a period of stress. At the same time, it has recognized that a too precipitous relaxation of controls that had become established over several years might well work a hardship on those whose eco-nomic arrangements had become dependent on the existing rent levels. Extended over a reasonable period of time the effects of removal would be much less evident. That is the policy which has been put into practice, and which the present court decision makes it possible to continue. We may expect that the year-to-year renewal will be continued for at least another period.

Tenants, of course, will have been happy to learn that their housing ac-commodation can thus be stabilized as to rental and freedom from eviction for a further period. Landlords, on the other hand, while disappointed in some cases that they are not yet allowed complete freedom in the disposal of their prop-erties, may find some consolation in the recent rental increases that were granted under the legislation. Eventually, with housing shortage—itself largely a created situation—overcome, a rewar-created turn to the free market, in rentals as in other normal business processes, will

What Would Barnum Say Now?

WHAT IS IT THAT MAKES A MAN w put his trust in another man—or men—he has never met before? The question may seem a stupid one; but is it? Almost every day, faith in the honesty and integrity of the average person is reflected by the casual meeting, by the exchange of equally casual conversation, such as, for instance, "It's a nice day!" or "Where do you live?" and the rest of the lingo that makes up the chattering trivia of the bus, streetcar, railway train smoking room, and so on. But the "nice day" man occasionally takes flight from his meteorological heights and comes down to earth with a bang-usually right on top of that part of the cranium of the "average person" which responds to the jerk of new financial conquests. And there is the rub.

We now depart from the realm of a type of society whose members do business with others they have never seen, nor even expect to see, but whose faith in the observance of contractual obligations does not weaken under the pressures of the gutter type of "trading." We refer to that other element which is which has exchanged the philosophy of small profits and quick returns for the whole-hog idea, for instance, of trying to double the savings of a lifetime through the instrumentality of chatter from the "It's-a-nice-day" curb trader. Confidence men thus continue to rub their slimy hands with glee as they see the area of human exploitation widen week by week.

We have in mind, of course, the recent case of a migrant from the prairies who had sold his farm—presumably at a good price—came to Victoria, met a couple of "It's-a-nice-day" men, watched them, figuratively, open the door to the sanc-tum of a modern Midas who would share everything with him, then led him up the "garden path," locked him in the mythical greenhouse and vanished. When, oh when, will people try to remember the moss-backed Spanish Prisoner trick and its competitors all over the globe? The only answer we can suggest to this question is to recall the late P. T. Barnum's dictum: "There's one born every minute and two to trim him." That was a colossal underestimation.

To Restore Troubled Nerves

HON E. T. KENNEY WAS ON SOUND around in his speech in the Legis-lature when he pointed out that public parks are necessities, rather than mere luxuries, in our modern way of life. There can be no question that homo sapiens, despite his ability to accustom himself to urban existence, periodical refresher outings in an en-vironment free of bricks and pavement. If his spirit is not to become bowed under the weight of 20th Century civilization he must be able to seek the quiet and restful beauty of woodland and neadow for a breather, as it were, to fortify himself against a return to the noise and bustle of the city. Obviously, a good many people never allow themselves this form of nerve tonic. But. equally obviously, a large number of those who do not are in need of it.

With this in mind, the two-fold program of the Department of Lands and Forests appears designed to fulfil a vital service to the population of this province. Briefly, the policy is "to seek out the most desirable and valuable recreational sites and reserve them for the public uses" and to see the most desirable and valuable recreational sites and reserve them for the public uses "and to see the seed as while the seed as a seed to see the s public use," and to spend available money "where it will provide the widest variety of recreation for the greatest number of people." So directed, the parks program will be of maximum value to the people at large, whether they be occasional visitors to these pleasure areas or ardent devotees to the outdoor life.

When the meek inherit the earth, we wonder what they will do with the super bomb.

Totalitarian Police Methods Exposed By One Who Knows

By JOHN LOGAN

A former member of the British Military Mission in Hungary who, to protect friends still there, is compelled to write under the cloak of a pseudonym

CAPTAIN EDGAR SANDERS, 43year-old British businessman who has pleaded guilty to all charges in the Budapest "espionage" trials, was a col-league of mine on the British Military Mission to Hungary.

Stolid and matter-of-fact, he could never have been coerced into confessing to the false charges laid against him unless he had been drugged before the

I know, on good authority, how these confessions are extorted. The authority is the senior sector of the Hungarian security police, a 60-year-old neurologist trained by the Russians, who once confided the system used to a colleague now

MADE SUSCEPTIBLE

The Hungarians use three drugs-sulin, aktedron and mescalin. Insulin, normally used against diabetes, is administered to the victim in overdoses. It affects his character and memory. He finally loses consciousness. Afterwards he is susceptible to any suggestions put Aktedron, a benzedrine drug, exhausts when over-administered, and reduces the victim to compliance. Hypnotic treatment is used in conjunction with these drugs and the prisoner, his resistance de-stroyed, is persuaded into accepting as truth the "confessions" taught to him.

Mescalin, on the other hand, is used

Mescalin, on the other hand, is used on those from whom a true confession is required. An alcoholide like morphine, it suspends mental resistance once injected, and the victim is unable to conceal facts under questioning.

The prisoner is subsequently brought to trial. He is no longer under the immediate influence of drugs, but where the first two have been used the result of the accompanying hypnosis remains, and he will repeat in court what he has been taught, while under "treatment".

Edgar Sanders arrived in Budapest one sunny morning in late 1945 to fill vacancy in the military section of the British mission. On his British Army uniform he wore cap and lapel badges of a wreathed rose above the clearly legible legend, "Intelligence Corps". The emblems, on ten highly-polished buttons of his service dress jacket confirmed this statement. It was hardly the advent of a secret agent;

At his trial he admitted the prosecu-tion's "accusation" that he entered the "British intelligence service" in 1940, served in it in Egypt, Italy and Austria, and was then sent to Hungary "by the intelligence general staff." All this is true, but it fails to show that the duties of the Intelligence Corps were of a routine and overt nature—interpreting, interrogating prisoners of war, censorship, the issuing of passes, studying captured documents, material and so on.

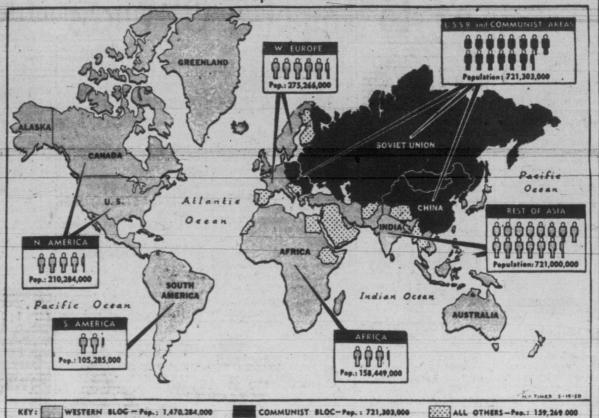

For Sanders to "report on the num-bers and disposition of Hungarian troops and other military matters" meant collecting material sent to him officially the Hungarian Ministry of Defence by the Hungarian Mi for this very purpose.

NO SECRET MISSION

There was equally no necessity for Sanders "to find out about economic conditions." An entire official section of the mission was devoted to this, and was inundated with material from the Hungarian ministries concerned and from the equivalent Russian branches of the Allied Control Commission.

When A last saw him in Budapest his pre-occupation was entirely with his new life in a civilian career. There was defi-nitely no secret mission behind the commercial facade, no army dust left on his feet, and no conveniently compromising identification document, green or any other color, concealed about his person.

U.S. Responsibility

NOW THAT the tremendous excitement leaders of both parties here are beginning to face an unpleasant fact that has, apparently, already been noted in Washington. To be blunt, the new political line-up greatly increases probability of another, still more shattering British financial crisis, which may occur some time during the next twelve

Last summer, Sir Stafford Cripps narrowly avoided catastrophe by the dras-tic expedient of devaluing sterling and imposing new measures of domestic aus-

THUS FAR, devaluation has been brilliantly successful. Indeed, the Ex chequer is positively embarrassed by the inflow of gold and dollars into London. If the balance sheet looks too good, it is feared that Britain's share of Marshall aid may be cut.

For the long run, however, the real problems created by devaluation have not yet been faced. Because of higher import costs, domestic prices have risen and are still rising perceptibly. The workers, with less buying power in their wage packets, want more money in them. The wage freeze that was precariously maintained until the election is already rapidly turning into a late spring-like wage thaw. Another attack of inflation threatens to send up all British produc-tion costs, and thus to destroy all the stimulus given to British exports by cheapening sterling.

IN THIS situation, Sir Stafford Cripps and his staff were planning to pre-sent a strongly deflationary budget after the election. The aim was to counter other inflationary tendencies that could not be wholly controlled by insisting upon the sternest governmental economy all along the line.

This was all very well, when Cripps, Prime Minister Clement Attlee and the other Labor Party chieftains thought they could count on another five years that they must carry on with the narrow est imaginable majority, and with the shadow of another general election al-ways hanging over them, the whole outlook has changed. Economy is disagree-able at the best of times. It is almost impossibly painful on the eve of a politi

WHAT MAKES matters worse is the obvious fact that governmental economies can only be made, on any im-portant scale, in two broad areas. Wel fare outlays may be reduced—which will be real political poison. And the already diminished British defence expenditures, which now run around 750,000,000 pounds sterling annually, may be cut astill

Maintaining adequate military strength is an absolutely essential part of Britain's remarkable postwar conjuring trick, of continuing to play a great power's part without a great power's resources. Previous suggestions of defence cuts, it can now be disclosed, have twice before moved the British chiefs of staff to offer their resignations in a body. The issue of defence versus welfare is also understood to be the principal source of fric-tion within the cabinet, and particularly the origin of the embittered feud between Ernest Bevin and Aneurin Bevan.

POSSIBLY there may be a bi-partisan approach to the budget problem, although the rage and disappointment of the Laborites and the eager expectation of the Tories will make collaboration difficult. Possibly Sir Stafford Cripps, whose iron character cannot be understand will carry the thing through by rated, will carry the thing through by

TELEPHONE RATES

In the Daily Times of Feb. 23 was a me of the President's report of the B.C. Telephone Co., and it is regrettable to read that a balance had to be ferred from the previous year to provide for dividends this year.

The public of British Columbia enjoy today the cheapest telephone service in world, as the rates were granted

Telephone equipment consists mainly of iron, steel, copper, silver, lead, cotton, silk, plus the labor of manufacture. All these items are considerably enhanced in cost since the present rentals were granted. Further, with the normal growth of the telephone service, the present ever-growing and unsightly overhead routes should be replaced by underground cables to provide a better service with more facilities, and thus help to beautify the City of Victoria of which our people are so justly proud.

The telephone company's contention that rates must be increased is reasonable and their application to the Board of Transport Commissioners is justified on the score of equipment costs alone.

Your readers may be interested to note some of the countries that have recognized these increased costs and have granted rate increases: United Kingdom, U.S.A., India, Argentine, Brazil, Peru Venezuela and others.

CAGED ANIMALS

With regard to the leopard in the Oklahoma City zoo, which is reported to have been brought fresh from the jungle in India and which, in a frenzied bid for freedom, jumped out of a 22-foot deep pit and escaped, terrorizing the whole city, it is time that human beings real-ized the cruelty of the traffic in wild this type, or trained as performing animals by means best known to the trainers, for the circus ring. One of the most popular reasons given for maintaining zoos is that they are good for the education of children.

It is certainly not good education in kindness to our fellow creatures. Our society (Performing and Caged Animals' Protection League) does its best to arouse the sympathy of the public for all captive animals, taken from their natural sur-roundings, deprived of their freedom, and condemned to life-long imprisonment. Instances such as the above emphasize the need for such a movement.

THE FARMER

People living in the cities should remember that everything they eat, drink, wear-even the air they breathe-have to come off the land or out of the sea.

They should not forget that as the farmer's income falls the business in the cities fall, hence the rise in unemploy ment. The men on the land only amoun to about 12 per cent of the population of B.C., and they have to have enough money coming in to keep the other 88 per cent living in the cities.

The people in the cities should keep in mind that, as they raise wages, they are keeping the money away from the man on the land, while the less spending power he has, so much the worse for the cities. As you can see, unemployment has started.

Despots May Begin Their Work With All The Best Intentions

By JOSEPH LISTER RUTLEDGE

"IT IS THROUGH fear and self-righteousness, rather than an active taste for oppression, that men commonly become tyrants." So says The Econo-mist of London, a publication which, while partisan, has been scrupulously tast in all the discussions of the religion fair in all its discussions of the political situation in Britain.

It sees the Labor government de veloping a highly-dangerous psychology resulting in a "combined persecution mania and a permanent sense of moral e." These are qualities. The nist asserts, that are symptomatic outrage." of a trend towards tyranny. SET IDEA

No one would say that the men now in power are not good men. No one would charge them with being driven by autocratic urgings. They are just men with a set idea. They are conscious that they have the welfare of the people at

Because they are so eager to accomplish all the good they plan, they are impatient at the hint of restraint, irritated by and fearful of any criticism. It is difficult for them to realize that most despotisms have begun in the minds of men who honestly believed that they knew what was best for the people, and were as honestly determined to assure it.

Everyone is faced with that danger, that his plans may become more important than their purpose. When that happens, he who should be a helpful critic becomes an enemy of the plan, and it becomes right to suppress him. Then, one day the people awake to find that there is a new despot with whom power has subtly taken the place of the earlier good intent.

We do not urge that this is the case in Britain. We merely agree with The Economist that the symptoms are there. The press of Britain has not been wholly favorable to socialism, but it might rea sonably claim to have a stake in the country and an obligation to its peo-ple, and hence a right to speak out.

But Mr. Bevan has publicly designated the British press as "the most prosti-tuted in the world." Concerns threat-ened with nationalization should not and must not complain, so argues Mr. Herbert Morrison. If they do the law must be adapted to restrain them. Government's elaborate experimenting, such as its costly African peanut venture, are not fit subjects for magazine articles, and certainly not for critical comment, so says Lord Addison.

NO CRITICISMS

It is reprehensible for members of the Opposition to reflect, unpleasantly, on government compensation to stockholders in nationalized gas companies in the view of Mr. Glenvil Hall. A Conservative Party that suggests that it, too, might be interested in child welfare, and so steals political thunder follows a shocking course according to Sir Hartley Shawcross. THERE is a tragic lesson in the case of Dr. Klaus Fuchs, naturalized British subject who has been convicted in Lon-don of betraying atomic secrets to Russia and has been sentenced to 14 years

A lot of folks seem to have failed to grasp that cardinal fort and its many healths. fact, and it may be that Fuchs was one of those who missed the point—until it was too late.

Fuchs was a German who fled Nazi persecution in 1933 and was given refuge in Britain. He was a brilliant physicist and was given opportunities to become one of the world's outstanding atomic experts. Finally he was loaned to the United States to work on the atomic

Dr. Fuchs had become a member of the German Communist Party in 1932 and he clung to this ideology. Naturally the time arrived when Moscow put the finger on him and demanded that he divulge the atomic secrets of the U.S. and Britain.

Perhaps the doctor was shocked at first. Who can say? In any event, as he himself has said, he split his personality into two parts, one loyal to the West and the other paying devotion to

There are a lot of folks who, when mention is made of communism, think in terms of the somewhat benevolent brand of the ism which existed long ago. That was a utopian ideal in which the members of the community lived in brotherly love and share equally—one for all, and all for one.

It's a far cry from that communism to the creed of the present-day Bolshevism. The current brand calls for one world, and the capital would be Moscow, with the sovereignty of all countries rest ing in the Kremlin.

In short, every citizen of that world would be answerable to Moscow. That's what Dr. Fuchs finally came up against, and what every dyed-in-the-wool Com-munist must face.

Ottawa Citizen Tories in Labor's clothing are still Tories. But British Tories are progressive conservatives, and Laborites are conservatively progressive. A strong democracy ensures political moderation.

Ask Why Police Work 44 Hours.

INDUSTRY EXPANDING

City Hall 371/2 Why should Victoria policemen be required to work a 44-hour week when the City Hall staff enjoys a five-day 371/2-hour work

Around this question posed by Fred Dougherty, spokesman for the Victoria Police Union in its wages and hours dispute with the Board of Police Commissioners, much discussion was waged at an arbitration hearing Wednes-

The police have asked for a 40-hour week and wage increases ranging from $13 to $56. Mayor George told the board the city's entire case was predicated on one point—the city's inability to pay.

Arthur Patton, city solicitor, onducting the police commisioners' submissions, said that if the city granted an increase to the police, it would have to grant increases to all other groups.

Paul B. Paine, chairman of the board, replied that figures pre-sented did not bear this out.

Mr. Dougherty had presented considerable evidence to support his claim that the police were far behind other civic employees in wage increases granted from 1939 to 1949.

"One solution would be staff cuts," said Mr. Paine.
"Your inside staff works a 37½ hour week," he said. "Presum-ably if you worked them a 44-hour week you would not need such a large staff."

NO OFFER MADE TO POLICE Mayor George replied in the affirmative when Mr. Paine asked: "I take it there has been no offer made to the police."

He asked if the board of com ioners wanted the police to carry on at last year's scale and 'the mayor replied: "Yes." Earlier Newton Smith, executive secretary of the civic service commit tee, said the committee had made an offer of $10 a month increase to the inside staff. The offer was accepted with a proviso, but has yet to be ratified interjected George Gregory the union's appointee on the arbitration board: "Would it not be logical if you must pay teachers and inside staff more, to reduce the policemen's wages in order to pay these other increases."

There was no comment.
The arbitration board concluded its hearing Wednesday night and Mr. Paine said the oard hoped to conclude its discussions Thursday. H. W. Davey K.C., was the appointee of the police commission on the arbitra-

They crowned Alberni island basketball champions this week but the diadem is slightly tarnished and not too proudly worn. For basketball it was another step backward? the series ending on the sourest of notes-default by the Victoria club. Not a few followers wished to see Alberni take the title but now the victory is a hollow one and the question as to which was the better club will long remain unanswered. Frankly I don't blame the "Y" in the least for refusing to drive private cars into Alberni but I do believe further efforts could have been made to secure other means of transportation. Granted the players would have been at a disadvantage having to make the arduous trip up-island twice in three days with little rest between trips, but any complaints about the schedule should have been made at the time those dates were set, not 24 hours before the game. The onus is on the Y.M.C.A.

The President's Hands Were Tied

On the other hand Alberni can be charged with failing to co-operate in the best interests of the sport. The series was so "big" to that community that with a little effort I'm firmly convinced arrangements for a Friday game could have been completed. President Wilf Cain of the Island Basketball Association was definitely on the spot. There was little he could do. Recognized as one of the fairest men ever to hold office in the island body, Cain was forced to abide by the previous commitments when Alberni turned down the Victoria request for the last-minute change. Having witnessed all three games of the series I'm still undecided as to which is the better team, this despite the fact that Alberni split two games here and won Monday's game in Alberni.

Co-operation Was Lacking

That third game in Alberni left a salty taste in the "Y" camp and may have partly influenced the management's decision to forfeit the series when their appeal to the B.C. body was denied. "Y" players were rather bitter after the game and no orchids were passed out for the officiating. To a man they were of the opinion they could beat Alberni and would still like to finish the series and decide the championship on the floor, not in the committee rooms. Only a last-minute miracle could bring this move about, but the co-operation between the two teams is so poor and the feeling Contentious issues such as ended the series were prevalent even before the first game. Alberni requested the basket areas at the High School gym be cleared of spectators, virtually demanded a certain number of seats for the game here and even threatened to bring their own hoops to Victoria. But once viewing the Aberni floor, one begins to wonder about such things and the importance of such pettiness. The spectators at Alberni sit so close to the sidelines there is barely room for a player to stand behind the lines on throw-ins. As a matter of fact the pre-game instructions (this was in the junior game) were for players to make an effort to stand back of the line. This rule about being over the line could not be rigidly enforced, there was so little room. There is little clearance behind the end lines with a balcony at one end and spectators at the other. And about the baskets! One basket was definitely not level, as I'm positive a test would have revealed.

Basketball's Light Is Dimming

There have been protests and disputes before in provincial senior A playoffs. Hardly a year goes by without some squabble or other, but to my recollection this is the first time a series has ever ended by a default. And unless something is done to rectify this situation, and done now, it speaks little good for the future of basketball on the island.

He wanted the scheme expanded.
Mr. Winch also was disturbed there had been no mention of a bill authorizing the government to impose a severance fee on the Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway land belt. "Isn't the government going to get any money from this potential source of rev-enue?" he asked.

Mr. Johnson replied that the bill would be brought in at the proper time.

Next, Mr. Winch turned to a new Dominion-provincial taxa-tion agreement in 1952 which he suggested the province refuse to enter into unless the 1945 pro-posals of the Dominion-Provincial Conference were imple-mented; the federal government assumed responsibility for old age pensioners over 65, without the means test, and assumed re-ponsibility for unemployables. IT IS NOT MONEY ALONE

More than a million and a half people deal with the Bank of Montreal, and they know that it is not money alone they deal in when they come to us. It goes beyond that. These people have confidence in the Bank; they know that their money is safe with us, and that they will be fairly treated in their business dealings.

We try to keep constantly in mind that the Bank is not primarily an impressive row of figures or an imposing building. We think rather of the Bank as the local manager and his staff, on whom our customers can always call for friendly counsel and service. Our branch-banking system is founded upon this relationship.

On the lower island the young fellows just don't get the idea of that song from "Oklahoma." They don't know they belong to the land, and they don't feel that the land is grand. Farming has lost its glamor. Even the rich corn of the best musicale attractive. A few younger men are carrying on in Saanich, but not many. The drift to the city has taken a lot of potential agricultural workers. Most farmers can't afford to pay high wages and allow short hours.

UP-ISLAND THE boys left the farm and hit the woods. Logging and lumbering give them good pay, set hours and a couple of days off a week. And in Saanich, youths seem to have a yen for truck-driving. They can up a load of gravel, drive it to where it's needed, push a button and watch it dump as they smoke. It's easier than walking out of the barn for a breather, straightening a tired back and brushing barnyard stuff off your clothes.

Saanich, the man close to the industry says, is getting more popular for the gentleman farmer. He is the type who has been advised to get outdoors and do a little work for his health. He doesn't need a big return for his labors-just enough to

DOROTHY DIX

Dear Miss Dix; Why does it seem to be a law of nature that the woman must always be allur-ing in order to hold the interest and love of a man, while the man goes unshaven and slouchy, even dirty, and takes no care of his personal appearance and still expects the woman to go on loving him and seeing him as the ideal of her dreams that she believed him to be when she married

I tell you I am about fed up with a husband who disgusts me by his slovenliness and fills me with contempt by his selfishness and lack of consideration for my comfort and happiness and yet expects me to be always charming and amiable.

DISILLUSIONED.

Answer: There are two an swers to your question. The first is, the reason that women make more effort to be attractive to their husbands and hold their husbands' love than men make to keep their wives fascinated is because it is more important to a woman to keep her home to-gether than it is to a man.

WOMAN MORE DEPENDANT

When a woman gets married she burns her bridges behind her and she cannot, as a general thing, go back to her former estate. So, aside from any sentipractical importance for a wo-man to preserve her home, which is her own and her children's livelihood. This she can do only by retaining her husband's love, average husband never worries his head about his wife ceasing to love him, because he believes himself so superhumanly attrac tive, dirty or clean, shorn or unshorn, pressed or unpressed, that she cannot help adoring him and admiring him. And he also believes that such are his powers float away skin dirt and weariof fascination that she will go on loving him no matter how Junior fashions are neater and abuses her.
